Sensing and Making Sense

29 May, 15:00–18:00, followed by end-of-semester celebration

Research Pool Walter Benjamin Kolleg
Unitobler, Muesmattstrasse 45, 3012 Bern

In the course of a PhD we use diverse technologies of sense-making – in the hope that our research can make sense in troubled times. But our research settings also offer specific sensory experiences: We hear, see, touch, feel, taste, smell, balance – in the museum depot, the archive, or in the café as we interview our informants. Developing sensory literacy in interaction with our research objects is an essential part of our heuristic processes.

At the GSAH Forum 2024, we invite you to explore our research topics through the senses. Join us in serious playfulness! After the Forum, the Walter Benjamin Kolleg invites you to an end-of-semester celebration with a farewell to our new alumni.
